The Damascus Massacres. Abd-el-Kader writes to the managers of the silk works Damascus, 27th Zilhege, 1270 (July 18.)

"Dear and honored friends-I greatly desire to see you, and pray Allah to preserve you. I have received your honored letter, dated July 13, inquiring what happened to the christians at Damascus. In answer, you are informed that on Monday, July 9th, at about two in the afternoon, the war broke out, in consequence of a punishment inflicted upon a few Mussulmen who had insulted the christians. These Mussulmen, in a state of frenzy, rushed armed to the teeth, to the christian quarter, and began slaying, burning and pillaging at the same time. The Turkish soldiers came to assist them, under a pretence of putting an end to the disturbance, but making common cause with the rioters, and killing, robbing and plundering with them. A few old Mussulmans made efforts to stop the business, but the Turkish officers had no wish for peace, and on the contrary hounded on their soldiers against the unfortunate chris tians, the soldiers being aided by hordes of plunderers belonging to every sect. Seeing matters were so desperate, I lost no time in taking under my protection these unfortunate christians. I sallied forth, taking my Algeunpleasant motion, and add but little to the cost of a buggy rines with me, and we were able to save the lives of men, women, and children, and bring them home with us. This state of things lasted Monday and Tuesday during which the rioters did not cease to kill, burn, and immolate the christians, without the governor affording them any help. I sent for M. ABD-EL-KADER-BEN MAHI-EDDIN." From the London Times, Aug. 1.

The London Times on the Emperor's Letter. The Emperor's letter will be read with interest by all with satisfaction by those who can forget the logic of tacts. The style is the full Roman hand familiar to the man who has won an empire, who has more recently annexed two provinces, and is master of a hundred legions. With the argument of success nothing is so easy as selfjustification. It must be observed however, that it is no excuse for the annexation of Savoy and Nice that it was conditional on Tuscany and the Duchies declaring for Piedmont. A steam navy may be far above the real wants of a nation, and yet be far short of the previous number of sailing vessels. France may have only 400,-000 men actually "under arms;" but when, for our own security, we measure men against men, it is necessary to take into account the immense addition she can make with a single fortnight's notice. But why are all these topics to be brought up, when we are only invited to a common policy in the affairs of Southern Italy and the East?

Certainly there is a case for interference of some sort in Syria; and, as neither the British Parliament nor the British press have given the least countenance to the suspicions and rumors which are current respecting the origin of the civil war, the prejudice against which the Emperor seems to defend himself can only arise from the For the oil of cummin the horse has an instinctive assion, and when the horse scents the order, he is in passion, and when the horse scents the odor, he is indeplorable results, and the consequent appeal for Europestinctively drawn towards it.
